

NATIONAL CRIME VICTIMS' RIGHTS WEEK. Queens District Attorney Richard A. Brown (right) at community awareness program at the Queens Criminal Courthouse in celebration of National Crime Victims' Rights Week. Also in attendance were (l-r) Natasha Morales, Director of the District Attorney's Crime Victims Advocate Program, Queens Supreme Court Justice Kenneth J. Holder, Kiara Williams, a fifth-grader at Public School 106 and the winner of a poster contest whose theme was how to help crime victims heal, and representatives from the New York State Police. (04.30.2009)