JFK PASSENGER INDICTED ON HATE CRIMES CHARGES
FOR ATTACK ON MUSLIM AIRPORT EMPLOYEE

Defendant Allegedly Invoked President's Name During Hateful Rant

Queens District Attorney Richard A. Brown today announced that a Massachusetts resident has been indicted on hate crime charges in attack on an employee in the Delta Sky Lounge at John F. Kennedy International Airport in January.

District Attorney Brown said, "The defendant is accused of physically and verbally attacking a woman for no apparent reason other than because of her religion. Crimes of hate will never be tolerated in Queens County and when they do, regrettably occur, those responsible will be brought to justice."

The District Attorney identified the defendant as Robin A. Rhodes, 57, of Worcester, Massachusetts. Mr. Rhodes was arraigned today before Acting Queens Supreme Court Justice Barry Kron on a four-count indictment charging him with third-degree assault as a hate crime, second-degree unlawful imprisonment as a hate crime, third-degree menacing as a hate crime and second-degree aggravated harassment. Rhodes, who faces up to four years in prison if convicted, was released on $50,000 bond/$30,000 cash bail and ordered to return to court on June 12, 2017.

District Attorney Brown said that, according to the criminal charges, the female victim, a Delta contracted employee, was sitting in her office in the Delta Sky Lounge (Terminal 2, JFK Airport) at approximately 7:10 p.m. on January 25, 2017, when Rhodes, who had arrived from Aruba and was awaiting a connecting flight to Massachusetts, came up to the door and stated, "Are you [expletive deleted] sleeping? Are you praying? What are you doing?" Rhodes then allegedly punched the door, which hit the back of the victim's chair. It is alleged that when the victim asked Rhodes what she did to him, he stated, "You did nothing but I am going to kick your [expletive deleted] ass. Rhodes then allegedly kicked the victim in the right leg. In an effort to get away, the victim moved to a corner of the office. However, Rhodes allegedly kicked the door, stepped into the office and blocked her from leaving the office.

It is additionally alleged that when an individual came over to the office and tried to calm Rhodes down, Rhodes moved away from the door and the victim ran out of the office to the lounge's front desk. It is alleged, however, that Rhodes followed her and got down on his knees and began to bow down in imitation of a Muslim praying and shouted, "[Expletive deleted] Islam, [Expletive deleted] ISIS, Trump is here now. He will get rid of all of you. You can ask Germany, Belgium and France about these kind of people. You will see what happens."

According to the charges, the victim suffered substantial pain and redness in her right leg and was placed in fear of physical injury, annoyance and alarm as a result of Rhodes' alleged actions.

At the time of his arrest, Rhodes allegedly told police, in sum and substance, "I guess I am going to jail for disorderly conduct."

Assistant District Attorney Michael E. Brovner, the Chief of the Violent Criminal Enterprises Section which is within District Attorney Brown's Gang Violence and Hate Crimes Bureau, is prosecuting the case under the supervision of Assistant District Attorneys Mariela Palomino Herring, Bureau Chief, and Michelle E. Goldstein, Deputy Bureau Chief, and under the overall supervision of Senior Executive Assistant District Attorney for Trials James C. Quinn and Deputy Executive Assistant District Attorney Laura M. Henigman.

It should be noted that an indictment is merely an accusation and that a defendant is presumed innocent until proven guilty.
